Mad Delights by Beth D. Carter

When violence sweeps through their town, the Men of Hell must figure out whos after their club. Someone is watching Romeo Barrigans every move. Chloe Matsumotos favorite pastime is studying the Men of Hell Motorcycle Clubs president. Ever since he helped rescue her deaf cousin from the hands of a human-trafficking ring, Chloe has become fascinated with him and now wonders how she can repay him. Daxton Squire is the enforcer of the Men of Hell. Hes filled with self-loathing after failing to recognize the threat from the former club president. When he spots someone tailing Romeo, he vows to protect him at any cost. Only Dax didnt expect to be so attracted to the little stalker. Violence sweeps through Bair, Nebraska, threatening the town and the club. Romeo has a lot on his plate. Not only does he have to figure out whos after his club, he also has to determine how the hell he ended up in a menage relationship and keep those he loves safe from the menace.

I like writing about the very ordinary girl thrust into extraordinary circumstances, so my heroines will probably never be lawyers, doctors or corporate high rollers. I try to write characters who arent cookie cutters and push myself to write complicated situations that I have no idea how to resolve, forcing me to think outside the box. I love writing characters who are real, complex and full of flaws, heroes and heroines who find redemption through love. Ive been pretty fortunate in life to experience some amazing things. Ive lived in France, traveled throughout Europe, Australia and New Zealand. I am a mom to an amazing little boy. Im surrounded by friends and family. And although I love holding a book in my hand, I absolutely adore my ereader, which Ive named Ruby. I love to hear from readers so Ive made it really easy to find me on the web.
