

The Warriors Woman

Desperate to escape the sadistic army colonel who has kept her as his prisoner, nineteen-year-old Alika casts herself into the sea during a powerful storm, hoping that the raging waters will carry her far beyond her captors reach. When Yahola, a Seminole warrior, retreats to a remote island to commune with his spirit animal, he senses the impending storm. What he doesn't anticipate is finding a beautiful young white woman floundering in the surf, and while the half-drowned girl is initially fearful of him, Yahola takes it upon himself to care for her. Though Alika has long known only cruelty, to her surprise her handsome rescuer treats her with kindness, setting out to show her that a man's loving touch can bring comfort. Yahola's world is very different from her own, however, and when her failure to obey him puts her in danger, Alika quickly discovers that the dominant warrior will not hesitate to pull her over his lap and soundly spank her bare bottom if he feels it necessary. Yet in spite of his firm-handed correction, Yahola awakens passions in Alika that she never knew existed, and his mastery of her body soon brings her pleasure beyond anything she ever imagined. But with the colonel still seeking to hunt her down, can she trust in her newfound protector to keep her safe?
